SIX Graduate Program

Kick-Start Your Career

What Awaits You

The first week is all about discovery. We provide you with an overview of our business units, we discuss your personal development plan, and you get acquainted with your fellow graduates and meet members of our Executive Board and your mentor, with whom you can regularly exchange views, thoughts, and ideas. Your mentor will guide and support you throughout the Graduate Program. The placement advisor is also there for you.

You spend your first six months in a business unit or corporate functions department that matches your chosen specialization. During that time, you attend initial training courses at our SIX Academy. You are entitled to a total of 15 training days during your time with us.

Afterwards, you spend three months at one of our locations abroad or move to a different department in Switzerland. Wherever your deployment takes you, this rotation enables you to gain further experience and additional insights into SIX. Under the accompanying Explorer module, you complete several days of further training together with fellow graduates.

Nine months into the program, you will have learned quite a lot about SIX. Now it's time to learn even more. You go abroad for three months if you haven't already done so. If you've just returned from your foreign deployment, we welcome you for another three months at one of our locations in Switzerland. Here, too, you complete another Explorer module.

When the last six months of the Graduate Program get underway, for you this means completing final training courses, wrapping up business tasks, and extensively discussing the feedback on your personal development. Then, for the finale, it's time to celebrate the finishing line of your fascinating 18-month journey with SIX.

→ Please note that we continually refine the program and adapt it to our graduates' needs. This means that individual program procedures may change as a result.

Apply

The SIX Graduate Program begins in October. You can apply for enrollment on our website starting in May. There you will also find full information about the program.
