SIX Swiss Exchange launches dividend indices

SIX Swiss Exchange is launching dividend indices on the SMI[®], SMIM[®] and SLI[®] today, 4 May 2009. Dividend indices serve as underlying instruments for standardized products and can be used by institutional investors to mitigate dividend risk.

The new SIX Swiss Exchange indices are calculated by converting the dividend payments on the SMI, SMIM and SLI share indices into index dividend points. They will be published daily after the close of trading. The dividend indices will be reset to zero points each year after the third Friday in December (Eurex expiry date).

Overview of core data:

Dividend index	ISIN	Symbol	Base index
SMI[®] Dividend Points	CH0049815704	SMIDP	SMI[®] Swiss Market Index, price
SMIM[®] Dividend Points	CH0049815712	SMIMDP	SMIM[®] (SMI MID), price
SLI[®] Dividend Points	CH0049815720	SLIDP	SLI[®] Swiss Leader Index, price

Eurex, the German-Swiss futures exchange, introduced a very successful futures contract on the Dow Jones EURO STOXX 50[®] dividend index as early as last year.
