SIX supports banks in promoting the e-bill combined with a new direct debit solution

The Swiss banks have decided to promote the e-bill and to combine it with a new direct debit solution by 2016. SIX Payment Services has been mandated to align the new direct debit solution with the automated e-billing processes and to replace the existing LSV+ and BDD procedures. The e-billing functionality shall be improved and upgraded at the same time. The solution offers advantages for billers; debtors will basically be unaffected by the switchover.

E-bills and direct debits will now be combined in one system with a common interface, which offers the greatest possible advantages for billers. For example, as of 2016, billers will receive direct debit registrations and cancellations electronically, as they are accustomed to with e-billing.

The new direct debit solution basically will have no effect on debtors who pay bills with direct debit. This means, for example, that existing debit authorizations will remain valid.

The financial center gears up for e-billing

The Swiss financial center is strategically gearing up for e-billing, the use and penetration of which shall be purposely boosted in order to meet the growing customer demand for a technical support payment procedure that is as simple as possible. Towards this end, the e-billing service offer will be further improved and upgraded, which will benefit billers and their customers alike. However, the Swiss banks are aware that there will also be customers in the future who cannot or who do not want to use electronic channels. That is why a new direct debit solution is necessary parallel to the upgrading of the e-billing service.

E-bill

The e-bill enables debtors to receive, check and pay their bills directly in their e-banking system. With just a few mouse clicks, the debtor can check the e-bill in the e-banking system, save it as a PDF on his computer and release the completed payment slip for payment. At most banks he can also set up a standing release for regular bills, with which he can automatically release such bills as long as they meet his specifications (amount, frequency). New direct debit

In the new direct debit procedure, the debtor will be informed about the amount due by the creditor just as with the current LSV+/BDD (e.g. per invoice or contract). The bank will debit this amount on the due date from the debtor's account defined in the debit authorization. In the future there will also be options with the right to object within 30 days after notification of the debit (e.g. account statement) for transactions with businesses and individuals (as with LSV+) as well as without the right to object for transactions with business customers (as with BDD).
